The gates of the camp opened. It seemed that an even darker night was waiting for us on the other side. The first blocks began to march. We waited. We had to wait for the departure of the fifty-six blocks who came before us. It was very cold. In my pocket I had two pieces of bread. With how much pleasure could I have eaten them! But I was not allowed to.

As I read the story "Snow," by Ann Beattie, I think the author remembers the best time in her life with her love, in a country house. In that particular time that narrator has mentioned in the story, was winter time. It was really cold and it was snow. I think that even the winter is a cold season in this story it represents the best time in her life, and ...
