Molecular weaving of covalent organic frameworks, where threads of strongly bonded organic molecules are interlaced at regular intervals, allows collective large-amplitude movements of these threads and can thus adapt to variously-shaped incoming guests, giving rise to "adaptive inclusion", a new scenario of dynamics in solids.

A novel air-stable layer-structured Mn-based oxide $\text{Na}_{4/7}[\text{Mn}_{6/7}(\text{Mn})_{1/7}]\text{O}_2$ is presented. The presence of native vacancies gives this material high structural flexibility and stability upon Na-ion extraction and insertion and enables high reversibility of oxygen redox reactions.

Abstract. Lead halide perovskites have been demonstrated as high performance materials in solar cells and light-emitting devices. These materials are characterized by coherent band transport expected from crystalline semiconductors, but dielectric responses and phonon dynamics typical of liquids.

Wireless power transfer is a generic term for a number of different technologies for transmitting energy by means of electromagnetic fields. The technologies, listed in the table below, differ in the distance over which they can transfer power efficiently, whether the transmitter must be aimed (directed) at the receiver, and in the type of electromagnetic energy they use: time varying electric ...

An exciton is a bound state of an electron and an electron hole which are attracted to each other by the electrostatic Coulomb force. It is an electrically neutral quasiparticle that exists in insulators, semiconductors and in some liquids. The exciton is regarded as an elementary excitation of condensed matter that can transport energy without transporting net electric charge.

Central to detection is chemical recognition using a selective agent and signal transduction. In an integrated system, the signal is then processed for reporting.
