Indeed, in nearly all of his tales a matriarchal Eve figure points the way to Salvation: a leap directly from Genesis to the Christian afterlife. Before happy endings may come, MacDonald's fairy tales must move, quite literally "close" to "Creation" (Fairy Tales 6). His interests in religious plurality and science manifest themselves in his fantasy, and yet his tales are not haphazard patchworks of multiple world views.

Genesis 1:1-11 surveys the history of the world before Abraham, while chs. 12-50 focus on one main family. There are no real parallels to chs. 12-50 in the literature of other ancient civilizations. However, other ancient stories do exist about both creation and the flood. These stories stand in sharp contrast to the biblical account.
