Although mostly considered archaic nowadays, especially when compared to the TIG and MIG, shielded metal arc welding, or stick welding, is a manual welding technique that relies on a consumable electrode coated in flux that is then used to lay the weld. This process is called stick welding because it uses welding sticks or rods that are made up of filler material and flux, the flux is used to ...

Different Types of Welding Processes: The Ultimate Guide

Welding is a fabrication or sculptural process that joins materials, usually metals or thermoplastics, by using high heat to melt the parts together and allowing them to cool causing fusion. Welding is distinct from lower temperature metal-joining techniques such as brazing and soldering, which do not melt the base metal.. In addition to melting the base metal, a filler material is typically ...
